Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Memoirs of Field Marshal Leopold Count Daun: Translated From a French Manuscript and Interspersed With Many Curious Anecdotes; Among Which Is a Full and Particular Account of Field Marshal Keith The House of Daun, from the Reign of the Emperor Maximilian down to Ferdinand the Second, had been almost entirely neglected, and reduced to such a Degree of Poverty, that when Leopold Charles Count Daun entered the Emperor s Service in 1630, against Gustavus Adolphus he scarce had 6000 Livres a Year. The Mother of the present Count was Jeanne de Konigsegg, Daughter of Frederic Count Konigsegg, a good Man but a bad Soldier, rather slothful than peaceable, who bore, with too much Resignation, the Affronts which some of his Neighbours too frequently put upon him.
