Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from The Industrial Progress, of the Nation, Consumption Limited: Production Unlimited I Venture again to present two series of articles which have appeared, one in The Century Magazine, and one in The Forum. I have made such slight corrections as have been found necessary. I have continued the statistics which have been previously published down to the present date and I have added some other treatises not previously published, notably the Address, given to the graduating class of the University of South Carolina in which I have given very fully the motive of my work. I began the investigation of our national accounts early in the year 1862, wishing to demonstrate the ability of the Nation to bear any amount of taxation which might become necessary for the maintenance of the national existence. At that time my own concepts of the great problems in social science which I have since undertaken to treat, were very vague and indefinite; I held, however, a profound conviction - 1st. That the purpose of human life upon earth could only be the development of the character and capacity of the individual through the very struggle for material existence which seems to be so arduous. 2d. That mind and character must be the paramount factors in material production. 3d. That there must be a higher law leading through the correlation of mental and material forces toward an ample and abundant subsistence and toward an equitable distribution. 4th. I held the profound conviction that these conditions of material welfare could only be attained by the development of individual intelligence, leading to the conception that in all commerce among men both parties serve...
