Canbury Press, United Kingdom, 2015. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 198 x 129 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book. The phone hacking trial was the prosecution of journalists from two of Rupert Murdoch's British newspapers, the News of the World and the Sun, for illegal newsgathering techniques. It was the climax of the new police inquiries carried out by Scotland Yard into the phone hacking scandal. For more than five years the News of the World had covered up the interception of the mobile phone messages of individuals from politics, showbusiness, sport, business and the law. The trial of its leading executives - which took place at the Old Bailey (Central Criminal Court) in London between October 2013 and June 2014 - became the longest concluded criminal trial in English legal history. This is the only book on the case. It lists the charges and legal teams, outlines the defence and prosecution case, and describes key moments, such as the testimony of Rebekah Brooks and Andy Coulson. At the start of the case, Brooks - a former editor of the Sun and the News of the World - and her friend Andy Coulson, also a former editor of the News of the World and until 2011 director of communications to the leader of the Conservative Party, David Cameron, stood next to each other in the dock. Alongside them were five others: Charlie Brooks, Mrs Brooks husband; her PA Cheryl Carter; Mark Hanna, News International's head of security; Stuart Kuttner; former managing editor of the News of the World; and Clive Goodman, the rogue reporter blamed for eavesdropping the Royal Family. They were variously accused of breaches of the Regulation of Investigatory Power Act 2000 (RPIA) relating to phone hacking); the corruption of a Ministry of Defence official and...
